

National Sales Manager

• Production animal health • Auckland location

This is a newly created opportunity for a skilled sales manager to take responsibility for a rural sales team and key accounts throughout New Zealand. Our client is a significant player in the animal health sector, marketing through the veterinary channel.

To be eligible for this role you must be an experienced salesperson with a good understanding of agriculture and a demonstrated ability to achieve results through people. Knowledge of the production animal health market would be useful.

You must be customer focused, performance oriented, well organised and able to travel on a frequent basis. The position is based in Auckland.

The remuneration package includes a competitive salary, car, superannuation and medical insurance.

If you think this is worth exploring call David Leyonhjelm on the number below for a confidential discussion or email your resume to the address shown. Note that calls are diverted to Sydney - allow for the time difference. Every contact is treated in strict confidence.
